Station 400 is open from 8:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.
Breakfast and Lunch served daily.

In 1852, a quaint railroad depot was built in Kentland, Indiana, when the railroads were essential for long-distance travel. Passengers took pride in each trip, and made time to explore the station while waiting for their train. The old depot was painstakingly pieced apart in Indiana and reassembled in Sarasota. After much attention, the building is now reminiscent of how it looked 150-years ago.

In the station, the air smells of freshly baked pastries. All the foods you love for breakfast and lunch come together every morning. As the dough proofs, the chef prepares the best dishes from scratch with the finest local ingredients.

Walking into Station 400 is a small step back in time. Life may find you busy, but at the depot you can relax and enjoy the goodness of an old-fashioned meal, artfully prepared, just for you.
